

Character Sheet

Dante – A serious guy in his mid-20's. Came from the projects of Atlanta. Loyal to the end. He had a rough childhood growing up around gangs and drug crime. He joined the military right out of high school and was drafted into an experimental program. The program tested out different enhancement drugs and outfitted soldiers with cybernetic augmentation. During one of his missions his unit was ordered to infiltrate and exterminate insurgents in a village. Instead his unit ended up killing innocent civilians. The military brushed it off and caused him to become distrusting of them. On a mission he got severely injured and left for dead. He was saved by Abbas and nursed back to health. As thanks for saving his life Dante sticks around Abbas helping him drive away any attackers to Abbas' village.

Abbas – A kind country kid. Living near the border of Syria, Jordan, and Iraq he grew up constantly having his village “overtaken” by one of the three countries. As such he holds no ties to any of the country only caring for those in his village. He is no stranger to fighting but will try to take the peaceful way out of conflicts if possible. He is skilled with sniper rifle but is untrained with it. His dream is to go to college to become a doctor. He is constantly at odds with the village head Shumaila. Although he has been through a lot in life he is still a cheery optimist.

Shumaila – Stern village head. She is one of the older people in the village at 50 years old. Although she is older than most of the residents in the village she has the most experience dealing with outsiders who come to the village. She is stern with the teenagers and adults, but very loving towards children. Having lived in the village for so long she is used to armed conflicts, and as such has tons of experience with weapons, and is quite good with technology. She is distrusting of most all outsiders but is especially distrusting of Dante.